OUR LONDON LETTER.

LONDON, MARCH 13.

No further development of the Afghan question has taken place since I last wrote, and we are still in a state of great tension about it. There is no question as to the determination on the part of England to go advance being made upon Afghanistan. But we understand that reiterated pacific assurances have been received from Russia, and though there seems some discrepancy between her words and the actions of her generals, this is perhaps accounted for by the fact that the latter had not had time to receive instructions from St. Petereburg. Mr. Gladstone stated in the House to land that no further advances were to be made on either side, and that the subject of the frontier was under treatment by diplometic communications, but had not reached such a stage as to allow a full comparison of the two sides, Russia on the one hand and the Ameer of Afghanistan on the other. We have had rumoure during the week that the Russians were making further during the week that the Russians were making further advances, and that Sir Peter Lumeden had undertaken the defence of the Robat Pase. Mr. Gladstone has declined to say whether or not the latter is the case, on the ground that under the present droumstances it would not be for the public interest to make premature disclosures. There is a confident expectation that collisions may take place between the Afghan and Russian outposts, but there are not looked upon as likely to lead to war. The general opinion is that if England maintains a firm stiffude a declaration of war will never come from St. Petersburg.

Lord Granwille's estatement in the House of Lords last Friday night in reference to the relations between himself and Prince Bismarck has had the effect of bringing about a better understanding between Eng-members on this account, and from many quarters we hear the prophecy that this will be the last attempt as legislation by compact. Such a severe strain has been put upon both sides of the House that any attempt to repeat the experiment would be satively resented. The Arlington-street convention has so effectively checked freedom of speech and action that many members are complaining of the tedium of being kept sitting to pease the bill through committee, and divide upon amendments which averybody knows have not the slightest chance of being adopted. The frish party are doing all they can to delay the progress of the measure through committee; but their object is to put off, as long as possible, the renewal of the Crimes Act.

The Ulster Conservatives have been making several strenuous efforts, needless to say without success, to remodel the Seate Bill in the interests of the Irish remodel the Scate Bill in the interests of the Irish Loyaliet party. But they have had neither sympathy from the Ministers nor assistance from the Opponition. Sir Stafford Northcote and Lord Salisbury have set their faces like flint against them. It is generally admitted that after the passage of the complete Francaise measure, few of the present Orange members of the House will enter it again, so that they, in reality, are fighting for very life. But the Orangemen are not only described by their political friends, they are threatened with renewed onelaughts from their opponents. Lord Hartington has arranged to visit Belfast, in the North of Ireland, during the Easter helidays, for the purpose of opening a Liberal club at the firstnamed place. It is understood that this visit of the Secretary for War is to be the first of a series of attempts to win over Ulster to the Liberal ceuse.

OUR PARIS LETTER.

PARIS, Macut 13.

The impression in Paris to-day is that Regimal and Russia are on the brink of war. The tone of the Bounes is ead, and the stockhrotzer, rightly or wrongly, have come to be regarded as the abrewest of politic class. They certainly take a keener interest in the question of peace and war between two moth Powers as England and Russia than any other class, and they do not move their eyes for a moment off the diplomatic pendulum that is now everging between London and Sk. Petersburg. A few days ago the Prench press treated the Anglo-Russian difficulty as virtually settled. To-day most of the papers regard the situation as extremely critical, the latest news from London, notwithstanding Mr. Gladstone's diplomatic caution and reserves, being looked upon as alarming. The Soleid has an artical this morning which is remarkable for its sound reasoning, and the knowledge which he writer displays of this Afghan question. He was a stablished railway communication between her advanced posts and the Caspine Se, which is the base of comparisons. EGYPT.

Reforms in Egypt (writes the Cairo correspondent of the Times) are so rare that it is pleasant to record the sole measure of improvement promising success. Colonel Scott-Moncrieft has submitted an approximate estimate whereby, at a cost of under half a million yearly, the corves, or forced labour system, can be abeliahed, and the work performed more efficiently with paid isbour, which would give employment to the poorest classes. But this, like every other reform, would become a curse instead of a bleating if highlish direction were once withdrawn; for the necessary tax would continue to be imposed, and forced abour would again be employed. The Financial Arrangement appears to be quite settled if not signed, and the Government seems to have surrendered Egypt to the graup of the Powers advocating the bourhholders interests, from which she was saved at the Conference. People here, who know what this implies, cannot yet give up the hope that the House of Commons will ave England from a surrender which will render har name infamous throughout the East.

THE WAR IN THE SOUDAN.

Wales has given a Danish wooden house to serve as a club for the use of the troops at the front of the Nils, Eaquism services in memory of General Gordon have been serviced in meany of the city churches to-day, and multied peals have been rough from the charach belia.

Last Friday night Mr. Wm. O'Briso, the suspended member, resumed hits east in the House of Commons. He received a very faulte or action from his friends in the librby, and when he entered the House Mr. Biggar attempted to warbt the sin. "Bee, the Conquering Herocomes."

There has been very little of interest in Parliament during the week. The Hedistribution Bill is going through committee, a process which is of course a mere fator, because the measure has been cast in the House of the service of the servi

The Financial Arrangement appears to be quite streaming and the Government seems to have surrendered Egypt to the grasp of the Powers advocating the bondholders' interests, from which she was saved at the Conference.
